English language teachers and professionals globally have unearthed constructive strategies to impart knowledge promoting critical, reflective, and skilled thinking in the process of teaching and learning. 21st century Language studies and teacher development have taken newer grounds in facilitating efficient teaching practices through a range of contexts. This Webinar strives to promote the nascent teaching methods, techniques, and tasks shaping the diverse contours of language studies including classroom interaction, differentiated instruction, flipped classroom, online teaching practices and challenges in shifting from face to face classroom to online. We were not prepared for this sudden shift as we studied in classrooms and wanted to become classroom teachers.
